Do you think that would be something that would help us understand better what went into developing the new relationships? To be frank, I anticipate needing to be able to explain why the use of the break point makes more scientific sense than the straight linear regression (biologically and statistically).

Any thoughts?

Dave

What would you like? The dataset? The package we used for the regression?

Good afternoon Kristi! Do you have the data/calculations any more background on the recalculation of the PRCs?
